Parker Knoll, famous for its hand -crafted British designs, has opened a major new facility at Castlewood, the business park on the Derbyshire Nottinghamshire border that has been developed by CWC Group.

Donna Bellingham, Brand Director of Parker Knoll, said:

“We are very pleased to be expanding our manufacturing facility with the move to Castlewood Business Park. This new site provides a fantastic new manufacturing base for the Parker Knoll brand, and we look forward to sitting alongside the high caliber of names that will also occupy the site.”

The deal to bring Parker Knoll to Castlewood Business Park was completed by Tim Gilbertson, of FHP and Ranjit Gill of Savills. Tim Gilbertson commented:

“All the talk about activity along the M1 corridor has been about the opening of large-scale distribution warehouses and Castlewood has one of the biggest in the region in the shape of the Co-op. It is also playing a major part in helping to deliver balanced economic growth by enabling some important manufacturing businesses to expand.”
